Money Was the Center of Attraction

[Meyer & Kiser's Telegram.] NEW YORK, Sept. 3.-The principal influence in to-day's market was money. Saturday's bank statement made such an unfavorable showing, bringing surplus reserve down to below $12,000,000, that the street came to the conclusion that higher rates in the future were bound to prevail. At the opening the market was fairly steady owing to higher prices from London but liquidation by commission houses accompanied by hammering by the traders quickly brought about a declining tendency, which, with few exceptions, was maintained for the rest of the day. Th pressure to sell was pretty evenly divided and no particular stock suffered more than another. Perhaps the coalers displayed the greatest resistence, the hard coalers because of good trade prospects and the soft coalers on account of persistent rumors of a consolidation of interests promoted by people largely interested in the steel corporation. The Denver securities displayed considerable strength, both because the forthcoming annual report is expected show an extremely favorable condition of affairs and also on account of rumors that control. These rumors, however, were not cent. and the last at 4 per cent. Since Friday the banks have lost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 to the subtreasury and present indications are that shipments to the interior during the week will be heavy. On the other hand the downward course of sterling exchange continues and unless the demand for bills increases materially in the near future, gold shipments from Europe will be made on next Saturday's steamer. The market closed listless and

Only a Temporary Decline.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 .- London came betup in most cases, but fear of higher money ment, caused liquidation of long stock and considerable short selling. The pools may be interfered with temporarily by higher money rates and stocks may ease off more if rates for money continues to advance, but when the money market will permit they will put them higher again.
